

News

WEAPONS & EQUIPMENT

- 4 US Army ground vehicle programmes advance slowly
- 5 Russian company shows off MRAP-style vehicle
- 6 UK eyes BMC4I capability for the Falklands
- 8 DICOM to launch new multi-channel radio
- 10 US introduces anti-brownout method for CV-22 training

MISSILES & ROCKETS

- 12 First canister launch for Agni 5
- 14 Saudi Arabia becomes first Meteor export customer
- 16 Almaz-Antey reveals TEL for a new mobile missile

UPGRADE UPDATE

- 18 US Army to open Black Hawk-Apache engine competition
- 19 General Dynamics adds capabilities to DMR
- 21 US Strykers receive integrated WIN-T network

UNMANNED SYSTEMS

- 22 Global Hawk set for further Japan-based operations
- 23 DARPA explores single-operator control of multiple UAVs

Special reports

- 26 Electric city: Insights on USS Makin Island's hybrid electric propulsion system
- 28 Lightweight precision: MBDA details Enforcer (KFK) munition
- 30 Analysis: France and UK take different routes to similar armour capabilities
- 32 New eyes for old Hornets: sensor options firm up for legacy F/A-18s
- 34 Sound idea: sonar sustainment brings refreshed thinking

Features

- 36 Lighten up: a new generation of guided infantry missiles grows up
- 42 Damn the torpedoes: defending against the heavyweight threat
- 48 Maritime vision: in search of lower-cost capabilities

EQUIPMENT PROFILE

- 54 Big in Brazil: KC-390 tackles the medium-lift transport challenge

TECHNOLOGY REPORT

- 58 Battlelab: assessing the impact of battlefield digitisation

PARTING SHOT

- 66 Independence frigate option

On the cover

36

Saab's latest M4 Carl Gustaf is representative of a slew of new shoulder-fired soldier missiles. This month, IDR explores the products of an industry scrambling to fulfil requirements for affordable, smart, flexible and capable organic squad fire support systems

On the web

For extra stories and images go to [IDR's website at ihs.com/janes](http://IDR's website at ihs.com/janes)

- General Atomics undertakes unmanned trials of DRR
- Lockheed launches F-15 IRST option
- Pratt proposes two-step F135 upgrade plan

Online content is only available to online subscribers