

On the cover

34 The Hawkeye howitzer undergoing test firings. The artillery system is designed to be mounted on lightweight vehicles and is set to offer a 155 mm variant.

Marcus Group 1705528

1705528-01-035615

News

Weapons & Equipment

- 4 Raytheon tests HEL system on Apache
- 5 Saab, Lockheed Martin team for new US Army laser training system
- 6 Yugoimport unveils MGS-25 Aleksandar self-propelled 155 mm artillery system
- 8 German Pumas set for range of upgrades
- 10 US military develops power optimisation app for dismounted troops

Missiles & Rockets

- 12 CASC unveils sea-skimming lethal drone prototype
- 14 Lockheed Martin funded for LRASM Lot 1, undertakes surface-launch variant test
Pentagon tests THAAD against medium-range missile
- 16 New wing design adds range to JASSM-ER
- 18 Thales progresses laser-guided BAT-120 munition
- 19 K1RV modifies Kh-38ME missile for improved PAK 50 fit

Unmanned Systems

- 20 ONR showcases AUV with undulating propulsion
Partners agree design of European MALE RPAS
- 21 CASC outlines CH-5 roadmap
- 22 China's CH-4 armed reconnaissance UAV receives upgrades
- 24 Guardian enters C-UAS fray
- 26 USN seeks multiday flight with Hybrid Tiger UAV
Infocom develops new armed UGV

Cyber

- 27 CIS offers open source cyber security standards

Special reports

- 28 Agile approach: Estonia's defence sector development
- 30 Ramping up: F-35B ski-jump trials expand the envelope
- 34 Mobile fires: New Hawkeye howitzer to debut in 2018

Features

- 36 'Outgunned': The US looks to advance its artillery to meet peer threats
- 42 Undersea dragon: Advancing China's ASW capabilities
- 48 Rotary role: Exploring QEC's LPH utility

Equipment profile

- 52 Repowering the Royal Navy

Technology report

- 60 Sonic boom: Sonobuoy technology shrinks to meet changed ASW needs

Parting Shot

- 66 China's MALL: UAV industry

On the web ihs.com/janes

- ARL research could power hydrogen fuel-cell platforms
- M15 RCWS equips Serbian armed forces vehicles
- Helibras progresses H225M and Excocet integration
- UAE takes delivery of NIMR protected ambulances