

FEATURES

- 38 | Build It—And Will They Come?
Britain reveals its vision for a UK-led international Future Combat Air System program
- 48 | Small Sats, Big Data
Sensor-data tsunami presents opportunities and challenges for operators and service providers
- 52 | Building Resilience
The U.S. aims to overhaul its missile-warning satellites and add sensors to track emerging threats
- 58 | In a Class of Its Own
Aviation Week flies Pilatus' first business jet, the PC-24, and discovers features that set it apart

DEPARTMENTS

- 6 | Feedback
- 8 | Who's Where
- 10 | First Take
- 12 | Up Front
- 14 | Going Concerns
- 16 | Inside Business Aviation
- 18 | Airline Intel
- 20 | Leading Edge
- 21 | The Launchpad
- 64 | Classified
- 65 | Contact Us
- 65 | Aerospace Calendar

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

- 22 | JetBlue's Airbus A220 order boosts "mini-narrowbody" sector
- 23 | The mature U.S. airline market has room for upstarts
- 25 | Boeing's NMA plan spurs Airbus to accelerate A321XLR definition
- 26 | Boeing and Embraer say they plan a wide-ranging, holistic partnership
- 28 | Europe keeps to ADS-B compliance date but considers exemptions
- 29 | Asian low-cost carriers pump more orders into inflated backlogs
- 31 | Noise and emissions are central for resurgent supersonic transports

PROPULSION

- 33 | Rolls-Royce advances Trent 7000, Advance3 and UltraFan programs

TECHNOLOGY

- 34 | Approach noise reductions demonstrate potential in flight tests

Aviation Week & Space Technology Editor-in-Chief Joe Anselmo (left) and Senior Propulsion Editor Guy Norris inspect six trophies won by Aviation Week Network writers at the 2018 Aerospace Media Awards in London. Aviation Week's Norris, Graham Warwick and Jens Flottau won awards for their reporting, as did David Esler of sister publication Business & Commercial Aviation. Warwick and Patrick Veillette of Business & Commercial Aviation received Lifetime Achievement awards.

- 36 | NASA flight trials show wing folding in flight saves fuel
- 37 | Electric-aircraft motor developer sets up base in Seattle
- DEFENSE
- 38 | Rolls unveils adaptive propulsion concept for British Tempest fighter
- 41 | Congress kills USAF's J-Stars command-and-control platform
- 42 | Royal Air Force revisits priorities for remotely piloted air vehicles
- SPACE
- 43 | UK backs Scottish spaceport plan to expand space capabilities

- 44 | NASA and ESA plan mission to return Mars samples to Earth
- 46 | ULA tweaks Atlas V design for Boeing Starliner missions to ISS
- 47 | NASA-funded teams prep for key space electric propulsion tests
- 51 | Dynetics will propel Astrobotic's commercial lander to the Moon
- MISSILE DEFENSE
- 56 | Tokyo seeks advanced performance from Aegis Ashore
- EDITORIAL
- 66 | Appointing two politicians to lead NASA is a bad idea

With Brexit looming, the UK has unveiled an ambitious plan to secure British industry the leading role in building a sixth-generation fighter that could also garner export orders. Our report by London Bureau Chief Tony Osborne and Senior Propulsion Editor Guy Norris begins on page 38. BAE Systems photo.

Aviation Week publishes a digital edition every week. Read it at

Access exclusive online features from articles accompanied by this icon.