

DEFENSE

- 20 | South Korea's KF-X design is approved; first flight due in 2022
- 22 | USMC retires its first F-35B as the program struggles with costs

SPACE

- 24 | DARPA-backed Phantom Express is scheduled for 2021 flight test
- 26 | China's Long March 9 will be bigger than NASA's SLS

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

- 28 | NextGen implementation issues remain for Northeast Corridor
- 30 | Airline seat dimensions are not a safety issue, FAA says

UNMANNED AVIATION

- 31 | Yearlong endurance eyed for new British solar psudeo-satellites

PROPULSION

- 32 | Hybrid turbofan concept offers a bridge to the electric future

FROM THE EDITOR

- 114 | Former NASA administrator says U.S. lacks vision for space economy

FARNBOROUGH 2018

- 36 | As ministers quarrel, industry calls for clarity on Brexit deal

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

- 38 | Aerospace consolidation anew: Now it is the commercial airframers
- 48 | Commercial airline programs to watch in market entry

TECHNOLOGY

- 58 | How Boeing's HorizonX is testing the winds of disruption
- 66 | Airbus BizLab helps entrepreneurs transform ideas into startups

SPACE

- 72 | Satellite experience is the secret sauce for the UK's success in space
- 72 | Some small British businesses are reaching for the stars

DEFENSE

- 76 | Spending takes historic upturn and industry reaps benefits—for now
- 80 | Where key defense contractors are placing bets and diversifying options
- 100 | Anatomy of the Boeing KC-46A Pegasus multirole aircraft

CARGO

- 110 | Cargo operators look to automated processes and robotics for efficiency

DIGITAL EXTRAS

Access exclusive online features from articles accompanied by this icon.

Aviation Week publishes a digital edition every week. Read it at AviationWeek.com/awst

ON THE COVER

SpaceX's CRS-15 commercial cargo launch by the Falcon 9 on June 29 symbolizes the seismic shifts underway in the aerospace industry as technologies, entrepreneurs and private capital reshape markets. Our extensive Farnborough Airshow report, which begins on page 36, looks at how those markets—and the established players—are responding. Cover image by SpaceX.